Never in our business experience have we seen such a rush—such a crowd of pleased and appreciative buyers in our mammoth establishment as that of last week. The public know that when we advertise bargains they are sure to get them. We have started the Spring Campaign and we propose to keep it up for the season. WOMEN ARE CARELESS.

The Over Estimate Their Physical Strength. A Little to Young Women

It is a common mistake for young women to overestimate their physical strength. They are often careless in their judgment of their own capabilities, and this can lead to serious consequences. The Treaty of Peace Between

Japanese Legation at Washington

Regarding Its Exact Terms.

Reaffirmation Will be Exchanged at Chee

Foo Within Three Weeks.

WASHINGTON, April 15. The Japanese legation was officially notified this morning by the foreign office at Tokyo that the treaty of peace between Japan and China had been signed at Shimonoseki.

This shows that the reports that the treaty was signed yesterday were premature. An official dispatch received at the legation contains the full text of the treaty and the conditions of the exchange of ratifications.

At the Japanese legation here the utmost reticence is observed with respect to the exact terms of the treaty, which have been telegraphed to the Japanese government.

The Minister says the information sent to him confidentially and that it would be a breach of duty to discuss the matter until the treaty has been formally agreed to. All the reports that the Japanese are proposed to make are being disregarded.

DEATH OF CAPT. FLOWERS.
Well Known Citizen of Bangor Gone.
The announcement of the death of Capt. William Flowers, of Bangor, Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marie Blanchard, in West Somerville, Mass., was received in this city with much interest. He had been passing the winter there and his death was due to a stroke of paralysis after a long period of illness and ill health.

Capt. Flowers was born in Sedgwick in 1813 and shipped as cook of the coasting schooner Polly of which his father was master, at the age of ten years, and for nearly thirty years followed the sea. He became master of some of the best coasting vessels and in 1832 to 1833 conducted a packet line between Bangor and Boston. In 1832 he went into trade in Belfast.

In June, 1833, he became pilot of the steamer Hattus between Bangor and Portland, serving in that capacity two years. He then went to the steamer Penobscot, as pilot, making the first trip of any steamer on the outside line between Bangor and Bangor. He inaugurated the process of running by time and course in 1834, and it was followed up by other lines of steamers. In 1836 he was in command of the steamer W. J. Chase when the cholera broke out on the Kennebec. Capt. A. S. Sanford was among the victims of the pestilence, and Capt. Flowers took command of the Kennebec. In 1850 the steamer was sold to New York parties, and he continued in charge, running between New York and Philadelphia.

He built the steamer Eastern State for the Merchants Steam Navigation Company in 1852 at Philadelphia and he then had command of the steamer which ran between Bangor and Winterport and Boston, it being the first winter line on the Kennebec. He rebuilt the Penobscot in 1854 at Philadelphia and ran the boat on the Bangor and Boston route.

In 1855 he became general western agent at Bangor for the Michigan Central Lake Steamers and the Great Western and Michigan Central railroads, and in 1858 he was transferred to the Grand Trunk railway as agent, holding the position several years. During this time he invented a form of sleeping car.

Captain Flowers was appointed by Quartermaster General George, of the United States Army, to command the ship of the public at Portland and then Island and take on board the first-class Marine Regiment with horses, passenger mail, storage, forage, etc. He was also appointed to go to Washington and establish the State agency there to look after our soldiers.

From 1865 to 1875 he was city director of the European & North American in Bangor. He was also a member of the city government. Since 1878 he had been vice-president of the Board of Trade. He was appointed State steamship inspector in 1881 by Governor Noble and held the position until about a year ago.

Capt. Flowers was widely known throughout the State and elsewhere, and many friends will much regret his death. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss.

The funeral will arrive in this city today and the funeral will be held Saturday at 2 P. M. at his late residence on Union street.

AMUSEMENTS.
Prof. Bristol's Exhibitions.
Prof. Bristol, the well known horseman and trainer, will give exhibitions every evening at the Normal next week and a large number will undoubtedly attend. He will do many wonderful things in the training and driving line. Citizens who have vicious horses are invited to bring them to the hall to be trained. Prof. Bristol will be assisted by several trained men. Popular prices will prevail. A band concert will be given each evening at 7:30.

Notes.
"Old Joe" Kelly with Richard Golden in the title role will be given at the Grand Opera House, Boston. Mr. Smith Russell sails for Europe on the steamship New York, May 21. He is to make a tour of England, France, Ireland and Scotland.

Wilson Barrett has been proclaiming his "New Hamlet," and now comes Otis Shilcock with a Shylock that has 20 years taken off his age. Instead of the shuffling, lugger-like money lender, Shilcock introduces a comfortable looking fellow, who has neither the rage nor the servility of the generally accepted Shylock.

Mime Rejane has closed her season in New York with the greatest eclat. Her "Mime" game went with plenty of approval, but her following plays, "Mimosa," "The Dolls," and "Supper," each in turn, have increased her reputation. Mime Rejane's two weeks at the Tremont, Boston, in May will bring forward all her principal characters.

William H. Thompson, the sterling character actor, now with the Fata Morgana, and Alf Hayman, Charles Frohman's general manager, were talking about the coming season. You could never feel more at ease than when you are in the hands of these two men. They are both of the old school, and their acting is of the old school.

About one hundred citizens of St. Albans met at the town hall in that place Monday to consider the feasibility of extending the railroad from Harland through St. Albans, Hilly and Cambridge to the point at the Bangor and Acadia railroad. G. Dillingham, and Zerah P. Lawry were appointed to accompany him. ROYAL BAKING POWDER
The announcement of the death of Capt. William Flowers, of Bangor, Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marie Blanchard, in West Somerville, Mass., was received in this city with much interest. He had been passing the winter there and his death was due to a stroke of paralysis after a long period of illness and ill health.

Capt. Flowers was born in Sedgwick in 1813 and shipped as cook of the coasting schooner Polly of which his father was master, at the age of ten years, and for nearly thirty years followed the sea. He became master of some of the best coasting vessels and in 1832 to 1833 conducted a packet line between Bangor and Boston. In 1832 he went into trade in Belfast.

In June, 1833, he became pilot of the steamer Hattus between Bangor and Portland, serving in that capacity two years. He then went to the steamer Penobscot, as pilot, making the first trip of any steamer on the outside line between Bangor and Bangor. He inaugurated the process of running by time and course in 1834, and it was followed up by other lines of steamers. In 1836 he was in command of the steamer W. J. Chase when the cholera broke out on the Kennebec. Capt. A. S. Sanford was among the victims of the pestilence, and Capt. Flowers took command of the Kennebec. In 1850 the steamer was sold to New York parties, and he continued in charge, running between New York and Philadelphia.

He built the steamer Eastern State for the Merchants Steam Navigation Company in 1852 at Philadelphia and he then had command of the steamer which ran between Bangor and Winterport and Boston, it being the first winter line on the Kennebec. He rebuilt the Penobscot in 1854 at Philadelphia and ran the boat on the Bangor and Boston route.

In 1855 he became general western agent at Bangor for the Michigan Central Lake Steamers and the Great Western and Michigan Central railroads, and in 1858 he was transferred to the Grand Trunk railway as agent, holding the position several years. During this time he invented a form of sleeping car.

Captain Flowers was appointed by Quartermaster General George, of the United States Army, to command the ship of the public at Portland and then Island and take on board the first-class Marine Regiment with horses, passenger mail, storage, forage, etc. He was also appointed to go to Washington and establish the State agency there to look after our soldiers.

From 1865 to 1875 he was city director of the European & North American in Bangor. He was also a member of the city government. Since 1878 he had been vice-president of the Board of Trade. He was appointed State steamship inspector in 1881 by Governor Noble and held the position until about a year ago.

Capt. Flowers was widely known throughout the State and elsewhere, and many friends will much regret his death. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss.
